

ARIZONA NATIONAL Zivestock Show

My do we classify?

The understood purpose of a livestock show is to compare animals to determine the "best" or Grand Champion of the show. That said, within the realm of registered (or "papered") shows, we also want to measure each animal on how well they conform to a breed standard.

Maintaining genetic diversity of all purebreds is crucial to meeting the ever changing market needs and economic value of the pork industry. With this in mind, the Arizona National, in an effort to maintain breed integrity, will institute a classifying system for all registered barrows and gilts at the 2022 show.

All breed associations represented have been contacted for their input on breed standards and invited to participate in the classifying system.

A committee of three swine producers will evaluate each registered animal as they enter the holding area. Each member of the committee will have a 'yes' and a 'no' coin and will independently place their coin in a bucket indicating whether the pig presented meets the breed standards posted in the Arizona National Swine Breed Characteristics document and the current Arizona National Premium Book. If the majority of the coins are 'yes' the pig will proceed to the holding pens. If two or more of the coins are 'no', the pig will be reclassified to the Crossbred division. The decision of the classifying committee is final.
